

Do you forget things you read last week...even things you read last night?

How would you like to immediately read faster and remember more?

Dear Friend,

You may be asking yourself, "Why would I want to read faster?"

Well, if you're like most people, you probably have a pile of reading you just can't get to. "PhotoReading" will teach you how to polish off the whole pile...in minutes instead of hours. So, you can...

- Be better-read and more knowledgeable than the next person. (That's one reason good readers earn 2-1/2 times the income of poor readers!)
 - Get usable expertise in home-improvement, the Internet, politics, gardening, antiques, accounting, geophysics, philosophy, calculus...you name it! Improve your "job" skills or your "life" skills.
 - Complete your reading quickly and efficiently, leaving more time for other pursuits.
 - Make informed decisions with every piece of printed material.
 - Understand the background to most anything in a fraction of the time (hooray!).

All in at least one third the time you would spend now.

You can always slow down to enjoy a personal letter, a special poem, or other pleasurable writing. But, when you are on that information highway, you will be driving the Ferrari of Reading: PhotoReading. It is simply the best.

Now, you can BLAST through information three times faster than you can right now.

It is time to step out of the reading dark ages and absorb information virtually at the speed of light with the amazing

(over, please)

PhotoReading whole mind system. This super fast learning technology activates your natural ability to quickly and easily absorb information.

PhotoReading is fast...faster than speed reading. And it is easy! Whether it's books, magazines, or even business and technical information, you can absorb information as fast as you can turn the pages.

- Be More Knowledgeable • Improve Your Job Skills
- Ease Your Workload • Earn More Money

All you have to do is complete the easy-to-follow audio course, and use the "PhotoReading whole mind system." You don't have to practice. But if you do practice, you will get better and maybe some day you'll PhotoRead at 25,000 words a minute like myself and others.

25,000 words a minute? You've got to be kidding?

It works! You will actually "mentally photograph" the printed page as fast as you can turn the pages. Literally hundreds of thousands of people have done it before you.

If they could, you can. As a beginning PhotoReader, you can get through information three times faster than you can now. From there, the sky's the limit.

WARNING: this is not speed reading

Speed reading is merely regular reading hastened up. You are taught to move your eyeballs faster.

With PhotoReading you learn to use your brain differently. After all, they say the human brain is more powerful than the most powerful computer on earth. If that is the case, then it has to be able to read faster than 212 words a minute, which is what the average American reads. With PhotoReading you tap into the greater abilities of your brain.

Speed reading is like looking at brick after brick after brick and eventually figuring out you are looking at a building. PhotoReading is like seeing the entire building right away, and then looking at the bricks when you need the details.

It is different, but it works, because it is based on how the brain likes to process information.

No wonder PhotoReading is the best-selling reading course in America today!

You may have seen me on television, PhotoReading books as fast as I could turn the pages and then answering questions with uncanny accuracy. Everything is absolutely for real. I can PhotoRead at 25,000 words a minute. And you can, too. All you need is a little motivation, and you can be zipping through books as fast as you can turn the pages.

You don't have to be an Einstein — just willing!

The PhotoReading courses have a 96% success rate, because almost everyone can use PhotoReading. Ages 13 and above. And, if you ever get stuck, call or email one of our coaches. The service is FREE. One coach is Patrick O'Neil. He's been with us for 17 years. Another is Dana Hanson. He's been with us for 12 years (and PhotoReading for 10 years). Caroline Schumacher, 10 years. Our people are good. They can help you, because they are seasoned PhotoReaders.

Use PhotoReading on all material from pleasure reading to business to academic to technical.

Whether you want sharper thinking, increased productivity, more income, better grades, or more enjoyment out of life, PhotoReading can help you.

Will you make more money? You might. We have stacks of stories from people who have received superb performance reviews and significant raises.

Will you have less stress? Yup. PhotoReading takes the stress out of reading. That's a given.

Will you improve your memory? Probably. That's a by-product of PhotoReading.

If you are a student, will you go from a C to an A? You might. We have piles of testimonials that say so.

Even if you are now a slow reader with low comprehension, you can see a dramatic improvement with PhotoReading right away.

“Reading breakthrough” permits speeds of 25,000 words a minute!

Use Your Whole Mind for High Achievement

BY DEBRALIN GARRISON

Most people struggle down the information superhighway with the same horse-and-buggy reading skills you learned in elementary school.

“One word at a time. Line by line. Saying each word in your mind. Hoping something sticks,” according to author Paul R. Scheele.

Others use the Ferrari-style of reading called “PhotoReading.” It blasts printed materials to the brain at phenomenal rates, a page a second. It is a wild concept. You actually “mentally photograph” the page at 25,000 words a minute.

Scheele, an international expert in human performance, developed this breakthrough for reading, which is easy for anyone to apply. As a matter of fact, a beginning PhotoReader can absolutely process and understand printed material three times faster than you can right now—that’s the starting point!

Prevent Information Overload

Information bombards you from your mail box to your email box, from your home to your office, and few people can keep up. Can you?

You may get by with your elementary school way of reading, but to thrive with today’s deluge of information, you absolutely have to do something different. Otherwise you will be passed by someone who can keep up.

PhotoReading helps by balancing effective reading techniques proven in university studies with Scheele’s breakthrough process. This combination allows you to handle your reading in the time you have with the comprehension you need.

Use PhotoReading on all types of material including books, magazines, trade journals, technical reports, web pages, email, electronic files, novels, and newspapers. And on all subjects from gardening to geophysics, philosophy to college calculus, computer manuals to detailed instructions.

It simply makes printed material faster to process and easier to use. Three times faster.

QUICKLY BECOME MORE SKILLED AND KNOWLEDGEABLE,
FOR BUSINESS OR YOUR PERSONAL LIFE

Q. What benefits can I expect from PhotoReading?

A. Of course, each person is different and experiences different results, but here are just a few of the many benefits PhotoReaders enjoy:

- Accelerate learning, improve memory, and heighten concentration to improve the quality of your day.
- Improve the ability to think conceptually.
- Discover new perspectives and approaches. Step outside familiar ways of approaching a situation and habitual ways of thinking.
- Acquire skills and behaviors. PhotoReading books on tennis, negotiation, chess, sales, time management, painting, rock climbing, self-improvement, etc., prepares your mind and body to express those skills directly as new behaviors.
- Propel yourself to higher personal performance. Your confidence and self-esteem will soar, inspiring others to more greatness.
- Enhance the use of your intuition. Society encourages your logical and analytical abilities. PhotoReading activates your creative, holistic, and intuitive abilities creating more choices, more power, and more fun.

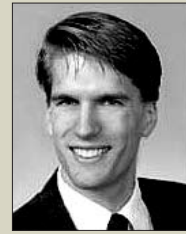

Leading authors rave about PhotoReading

"Leaders today grasp new ideas quickly, read voraciously across many important topics, and need to stay current with the latest advances in their fields. The PhotoReading Whole Mind System shows me how to do it all." Ken Blanchard, Ph.D. co-author of the eight-million selling One Minute Manager

"If time is money and reading takes time, then I heartedly recommend saving money and time with this brilliant guide. For those of us in the fast lane, the PhotoReading Whole Mind System isn't a luxury, it's a necessity." Harvey Mackay, author of Swim with the Sharks and Beware of the Naked Man

"PhotoReading is a gem. It contains powerful tools for excelling in life. I thoroughly recommend it." David McNally, author of Even Eagles Need a Push

"PhotoReading is literally eye-opening... The goal: Let your unconscious take a snapshot, imbibing a whole page in a glimpse... It may well be the standard equipment for 21st Century SuperLearners." Sheila Ostrander and Lynn Schroeder, writing in SuperLearning 2000

"The customer wants me to know everything"
"I spend a good deal of my time reading computer industry publications to keep current with new information, not to mention the reams of technical manuals for new products that are constantly being released to the market."

"One customer requested that I take a look at one of their systems I had never seen. I had no experience whatsoever with the software. They wanted me to give it a try anyway, so I asked them for manuals and a brief description of the problem. After dropping 2000 pages of documentation in my lap, they chuckled and jokingly said 'have it done in 30 minutes.' I PhotoRead the documentation in 20 minutes, spent 10 minutes with the software program, and fixed the problem on the spot! PhotoReading gives me the edge to stay a step ahead in an industry that's overflowing with information."

Kirk Klobe, Minneapolis, Minnesota

Confidently go back to school or learn a new industry

"I went back to college after 30 years and graduated with highest honors—all due to PhotoReading. It taught me how to learn anything more easily, and it helped build my confidence to a degree I had never experienced before."

Dr. Carol Reiners, Parkersburg, Iowa

Improve sports performance

"I used the fascinating Direct Learning part of PhotoReading that can be used to improve skills. I PhotoRead a golf instructional book 18 times over six days and improved my game by 23%! All total I spent 90 minutes PhotoReading. I've never played so well."

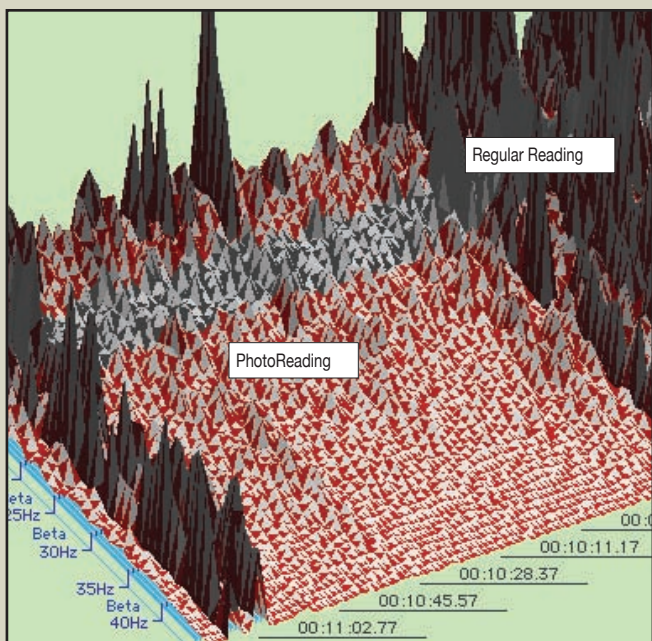

John Doorbar, Landenberg, Germany

Improve your grades in school, and increase confidence

"I researched and wrote a report in two hours and received a 92%. PhotoReading is opening me to books and subjects I ordinarily would not read, because I now have the confidence to understand and use the material. It is a far cry better than the old method."

Chelsa Brown, Sunderland, Maryland

Brainwave activity changes immediately with PhotoReading

You can see in the chart to the left how brainwave activity instantly changed when a student began PhotoReading during a special session taped for a United Film & Television documentary called "Genius."

The dark areas show brainwave activity while the student was "regular" reading. The lighter area shows activity while the student was PhotoReading. Notice how the change happened immediately. It is like plodding through a dense forest and then running through an open field. "Mental chatter" disappeared as the PhotoReader instantly expanded the capabilities of his mind.

This highlights yet another way that PhotoReading is different from regular reading and different from speed reading. PhotoReading allows you to process information in a way that is more compatible with the tremendous powers of the human brain.

3 leading edge technologies make PhotoReading easy, effective, and enjoyable

The first is superlearning; it is also called accelerated learning, integrative learning, or suggestology. It was developed by Dr. Georgi Lozanov in Bulgaria in the 60s and 70s primarily for the rapid acquisition of language. Peter Kline, one of the nation's top accelerative learning experts, worked with Paul Scheele in 1985 to integrate accelerative learning into the PhotoReading program.

The second technology of human development is neuro-linguistic programming, or NLP. This was developed by John Grinder and Richard Bandler. Among other things, NLP says that if one person performs a particular task he or she must click a certain set of neural circuits in a particular order. If another person is to perform basically the same task, this person must also click those same circuits in that same particular order. With NLP you can figure out how one person is clicking and teach another to click the same way.

That is what Paul Scheele did with PhotoReading. He trained with Bandler and Grinder in the late 70s and early 80s, and he used his expertise in NLP to figure out how natural PhotoReaders were clicking their circuits. He then developed a program to teach everyone to click the same way, so that everyone gets the same results, so that everyone can PhotoRead.

The third technology is with preconscious processing, which involves learning below the threshold of conscious awareness. Subconsciously. Learning with the unconscious mind, the inner mind. And that is what PhotoReading is all about because we bypass the conscious mind and dump the information directly into the other-than-conscious.

PhotoReading leaves speed reading in the dust

About the only similarity between speed reading and PhotoReading is the word "reading." Speed reading is basically regular reading hastened up. Instead of going for words you are going for phrases, complete lines or paragraphs. It's still primarily a conscious-mind, left-brain function.

PhotoReading, on the other hand, is an other-than-conscious, right-brain process. You learn how not to rely on the words that are on the page, but on what goes on in your head. It's not about moving your eyeballs really fast; it's about using your brain more efficiently. Speed reading is about getting comprehension of the words on the page while PhotoReading is about getting comprehension of the meaning of the page.

"We live in an age when too little time and too much information compete. If we are to succeed, we require new skills for processing and learning from information. PhotoReading is about working with the greatest information processing device known to mankind: the human mind."

Paul R. Scheele, PhotoReading Developer and Chairman of Learning Strategies Corporation

This year I have a college level AP US History class. We were given several textbook reading assignments, on which I used the PhotoReading system. The night before the test I converted all my notes into a giant mind map, which I studied from.

We took our first unit test, and I scored 100 percent! It was great! I feel like I have very solid comprehension of the subject matter. I hope to have continued success with the PhotoReading system.

Andy030 - Member

I could say PhotoReading has changed my life but it hasn't really changed my outward life at all but it has changed a lot of things inwardly. I've always slow-read a lot of books and was always in the habit of trying to read to GET THINGS and now I read to see what will come to me.

I have a whole wall full of books I have never had the time to get to and I'm cranking through them.

My normal habit of reading every word of everything I read is GONE and when I read a magazine I now automatically do the steps and find myself subvocalizing very few sentences and getting to the useful information very quickly.

At work last week the managers came out with a new employee handbook and at the meeting I PhotoRead the whole thing in about 30 seconds and before all of them were even passed out to everyone I said "short term disability pay is 60% but you didn't say for how many weeks that would last" and everyone just stared at me.

Then everyone flipped to the page and I was right! I didn't focus on anything and only did the PhotoReading step. I THINK I picked that up because I knew a coworker was going to have hip surgery in a month and she had asked me if I knew about that weeks before. So, something is clicking in my mind and maybe when we PhotoRead we answer questions we don't consciously know we have at the moment.

I'm impressed. I will probably go to the seminar when it comes near me.

I have used PhotoReading on graduate level texts in electrodynamics (Classical Electrodynamics by Jackson), mechanics (Mechanics by Landau and Lif*z) and quantum mechanics (Quantum Mechanics by Merzbacher). I have found the system to be very useful in absorbing the material in these texts, and none of these texts is for the faint-hearted. That being said, remember that these are graduate level texts in a specific field, and that I already held an under-graduate degree in physics. I had some familiarity with the subject matter and was at a level where I was prepared to absorb the material contained therein. If I did not have the foundations in that area of study, I would have had to have started with more elementary texts.

In my opinion, the Photo-Reading system does work on any and all kinds of material. It does not auto-magically endow the PhotoReader with instant understanding of what they have PhotoRead—if you are not intellectually prepared to absorb the material in a technical text via regular reading, I do not think that PhotoReading will make it happen for you. However, PhotoReading does dramatically increase the speed with which you CAN absorb information, allowing you to more readily master written material. I went from staying up until 1 or 2 AM studying and working problem sets to getting to bed by 10 PM while using the PhotoReading system for my graduate courses (and I maintained a high G.P.A.).

Ryan - Member

The PhotoReading system really does work! I used it to pass a college algebra course last semester and made a B from using the system. I was impressed because I had a lot of anxiety about whether the system really did work. After that I gained confidence about it and now I am a proficient PhotoReader. I read about four or five books a month just pleasure reading on my spare time. Sometimes more.

Michael Saikali - Member

PhotoReading is a brilliant method devised to help people like ourselves to become the "natural learners" that we were meant to be but were molded to the contrary by our educational systems that in my opinion are completely outdated!

My opinion is based on observations of my two young boys. Everytime they see or hear something new I notice they go into this blank, relaxed stare. It's as if they have tuned out the conscious and tuned in the sub-conscious for long term remembering.

PhotoReading helps us relax and once again become the "natural learner" we were meant to be.

mgrego2 - Member

I hated Paul's regular comments to just relax and play with it. It wasn't the way my conscious mind worked. Now I can finally understand what he's saying. If we don't relax, we get in our own way.
